Three Kinds of Love.

"Love is a disease of the heart that makes the world go round. It is found in both sexes before marriage. It is that peculiar power that makes a six dollar a week clerk spend four dollars for a horse and buggy to take a girl riding on Sunday. Love is said to be blind, and I guess that's so, for them in love see it's out of sight. Many a fellow falls in love and walks up on the hill to find he's landed in debt. Misster is in love, which are grate for me, as it keeps me in candle to eat. They is three kinds of love: puppy love, half-way love and true love. The first are for boys and girls, the second ain't very dangerous, but when you get the third kind you are up against it for shore an' you might as well visit Day Bros. furniture department."

THE OFFICE BOY.

A Journey to Camp Christy.

One who has not taken a trip to Camp Christy knows little of what is being or can be accomplished in the development of a timber section of eastern Kentucky, and to know the system under which that vast mill is run is a knowledge well worth the acquisition.

On last Saturday morning a party consisting of Prof. and Mrs. M. L. Gorton, Prof. J. F. Lukens, Miss Louise and Amy Caldwell, Sue E. Reese and Evelyn Byrd Ray, of the college faculty, Rev. Wm. J. Morris, and Messrs. L. Y. Redwine and Kelly Kash left Jackson via the K. L. & V. railroad and reached Camp Christy at one o'clock. Thanks to the company for complimentary transportation and for the many courtesies of the train officials in giving the party a safe and pleasant journey to the camp.

The train was met at the depot at Camp Christy by Mr. C. C. Hubbard, the genial book-keeper and business manager of the company, and he led the party immediately to the club house, the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Snowden, where a delightful dinner, prepared by the matchless skill of the hostess, was in readiness. Justice to the sumptuous meal demands that the many delicious dishes should be named, but the writer will be content in saying that it was a menu most judiciously selected and skillfully prepared, and for more than half an hour the party of ten surrounding that heavy festal board were assisted and urged by the kind hostess, aided by Mr. Hubbard, in partaking of a meal which kings or lords might envy.

Dinner over, the party was led by Mr. Hubbard to see some of the most important features of that vast plant, that is such a factor in the development and building of that section. The different systems were carefully explained and it was indeed wonderful to see with what uniformity and regularity such an immense plant can be conducted. It was a most pleasant outing and the party was united in praise of Mrs. Snowden for the sumptuous meal, and of Mr. Hubbard and Capt. Enright, who was unavoidably called away, for the complimentary transportation, and also mention should be made of Mr. Porter, the engineer, and of the train crew for their care in giving the party a safe journey free from accidents or danger. It was a day most pleasantly spent and will be held in fond remembrance by the delighted party.

For a Weak Digestion.

No medicine can replace food but Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will help you digest your food. It is not the quantity of food taken that gives strength and vigor to the system, but the amount digested and assimilated. If troubled with a weak digestion, don't fail to give these Tablets a trial. Thousands have been benefited by their use. They only cost a quarter. For sale by The Jackson Drug Co.

PROPERTY OWNERS

Who desire lasting results, should insist upon the use of Green Seal Paints. It's the great preserver of surfaces. For sale by M. S. Crain.

The Honest Way.

An exchange truthfully says: "Every person not already clearly informed on the subject, should know that the proper way to discontinue a newspaper is to settle all arrearage on subscription. This is not only the legitimate way, but it is the honest and manly way. No one who desires to do the square thing will refuse to accept a paper at the postoffice unless all arrearages of subscription have been paid in full, and very few people do."

An Acquisition to The Lexington Herald.

We have the pleasure of announcing that Charles I. Stewart, formerly of Louisville and more recently of Philadelphia, has joined The Herald staff. Mr. Stewart was for four years connected with the Louisville Dispatch, a large part of the time having entire charge of the paper, and won for himself the respect, confidence and esteem of those who came in contact with him, as well as a high reputation as a newspaper man by the capacity shown in the editorial control and business management of the paper.

After the failure of the Dispatch which was inevitable in spite of Mr. Stewart's able and progressive management, he was connected with different papers in Louisville as assistant editor or as managing editor. He was tempted to go from Louisville to the Philadelphia Ledger, with which he has been connected for the past year in a position of importance and responsibility, which he resigned to accept a place on the staff of The Lexington Herald.

He will have charge of the business and advertising department. Mr. Frank S. Reed, who has had charge of that department, taking charge of the subscription department, to which he will devote all of his attention. Mr. Stewart will also do a large part of the editorial work on The Herald, and we congratulate our readers upon our good fortune in securing his services for them and bespeak for him the kindly consideration and generous welcome to which he is entitled and which we feel confident he will receive.—From The Lexington Herald of April 16.

A Tried and True Friend.

One Minute Cough Cure contains not an atom of any harmful drug, and it has been curing Coughs, Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough so long that it has proven itself to be a tried and true friend to the many who use it. Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., says: "Coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. After trying a number of remedies to no avail, One Minute Cough Cure entirely cured me." Sold by M. S. Crain.

All in the Family.

"Have you any dog biscuits?" asked the man who had recently invested in a canine.
"No," answered the groceryman, "but I have some fine sissages."—Chicago News.

Rheumatic Pains Quickly Relieved.

The excruciating pains characteristic of rheumatism and sciatica are quickly relieved by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The great pain relieving power of the balm has been the surprise and delight of thousands of sufferers. The quick relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by Jackson Drug Co.

A Brave and Simple "No."

An American naval captain was asked why, with his ship in extremity and the waves washing men overboard, he had suddenly hauled down his flag of distress. He and his crew had seen that the British steamer was lowering one of her boats (it rescued them) and had doubted whether a boat could live in that sea. "I said then to my men, 'Shall we let those brave fellows risk their lives to save ours?' and they said, 'No!' Then I hauled down the flag."—London Spectator.

PROPER CARE OF HENS.

How to Manage a Flock to Secure Best Results.

The henhouse must have comfort equal to the demand of a hen. Fancy buildings are not needed; in fact, any old building will do that is dry, comfortable and clean. It must be proof against wind, rain and cold and absolutely dry inside, says the Feather.

Each fowl should have six square feet of floor space. The whole interior should be a scratch room, where the hens can be shut in during the cold or wet days when it is not best for them to go out. Colonies of twenty-five or less are best, and a room or apartment 10 by 15 feet gives six square feet for each. The floor should have six or eight inches of dry soil or sand, so they can dig in it. On top of this should be thrown every bit of grain that is fed, compelling them to dig and hunt for all their food. This hunting and digging in the straw and loose earth or soil keeps them busy, gives them plenty of exercise, keeps their blood in circulation and makes them healthy and vigorous.

All the water vessels should be emptied at night and in the winter filled about 10 o'clock in the morning with warm—not hot—water. The reason for filling at 10 in the morning is to give the hens a chance to hunt and dig and get warmed up before they have a drink. Warm water should be given in winter so as not to chill the hens. Hot water or hot food is bad at all times. Warm mash and warm water that feels pleasant to your hands are good for them, but hot food or drink unnaturally heats them, and when they cool off it is bad for them.

Night and morning feed dry grains. Have a mixture of wheat, oats, corn, barley, buckwheat and some millet seed. If the proper amount of grain food and animal food is provided, mix these grains about equal parts and only feed what they will eat. Don't be afraid to feed so long as they will hunt and dig for the food. It will not hurt them if they are hungry enough to hunt and dig for it. At noon feed much food made of equal parts, by measure, of ground oats, bran and middlings. In this put at least half an ounce per hen per day of good, high grade meat scrap, mix with hot water or hot milk and feed just a little warm to them in troughs. Give them all they will eat up clean. Take away any that is left.

Green food is of vast importance. Cut clover hay is splendid for them. Cut about half an inch long and put into the feed trough; give them all they will eat. Beets, a little turnips and cabbage are good; not too many turnips, as they will favor the eggs. By all means feed all the green food the fowls will eat. Frozen cabbage or vegetables of any kind are bad for poultry. Have the green food so good they will think it is summer.

This ration of grain, mash and green food is given with the understanding that all will be used as directed. If any part is left out the combination is broken and the best results lost.

Grit, shell and charcoal should be at hand all the time, so they can help themselves. All this is of importance. It is quite easily followed and will insure success, providing, as we stated at the start, that the hens are well selected.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best and Most Popular.

"Mothers buy it for crummy children, railroad men buy it for severe coughs and elderly people buy it for la grippe," says Moore Bros., Eldon, Iowa. "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than any other kind. It seems to have taken the lead over several other good brands." There is no question but that this medicine is the best that can be procured for coughs and colds, whether it be a child or an adult that is afflicted. It always cures and cures quickly. Sold by The Jackson Drug Co.

THRIFTY PEOPLE

Use Green Seal Liquid Paint. Considering results, it is the cheapest on the market. For sale by M. S. Crain.

Why the Earth is Round.

It seems as if text books for children were now made so simple as to leave hardly any chance for misunderstanding, but the little folks still continue to commit to memory the words without much thought of their meaning. "How do we know that the earth is round?" asked a teacher of one of her boys. The pupil rose promptly and, with a perfectly stolid expression, answered glibly, "We learn that the earth is round from the following facts," and immediately sat down again, evidently feeling that he had given a full and most satisfactory reply.

Forget About Your Stomach.

If your digestion is bad the vital organs of your body are not fed and nourished as they should be. They grow weak and invite disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, cures indigestion and all stomach troubles. You forget you have a stomach from the very day you begin taking it. This is because it gets a rest—recuperates and gradually grows so strong and healthy that it troubles you no more. E. L. Babcock, Amherst, Minn., says: "I have taken a great many remedies for indigestion but have found nothing equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." Kodol digests what you eat, cures indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Belching, Heartburn and all Stomach Troubles. Its preparation is the result of many years of research. Sold by M. S. Crain.

REV. WALTER HOLCOMB.

Of Statesville, N. C., who arrived in Saturday evening to begin the union revival services.

The court house was packed on last Sunday morning to its fullest extent to hear R. V. Walter Holcomb in his first sermon in his series of union revival services. Mr. Holcomb arrived from Mayfield, Ky., where he had been conducting a revival meeting, which was reported to have been a remarkable success. The sermon on Sunday morning was one of the ablest ever held in Jackson. In a forcible and concise manner he expounded the doctrine of salvation and carried earnestness and conviction to the hearts of his auditors.

About Rheumatism.

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain Balm will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffer when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? For sale by Jackson Drug Co.

Green Cat Bone.

I have used a green bone enter for over three years, grinding sixty pounds, more or less, every week, says a Utah farmer in American Agriculturist. My flock of 100 to 150 chickens eat the stuff greedily, and if they could get where I am using the machine they would literally eat it. The feeding of bones certainly increased the number of eggs my hens laid as well as improved their health. For a period of six months I quit feeding bones. I soon found, however, that the hens laid fewer eggs and seemed less thrifty. I am unable to give accurate figures in this case, because I have taken some of the eggs each day. My experience certainly justifies me in saying that green cat bone increases the number of eggs laid, especially in the winter.

The Right Name is DeWitt.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures, soothes and heals cuts, burns, boils, bruises, piles and all skin diseases. K. E. Zickeloose, Adolph, W. Va., says: "My little daughter had white swelling so bad that piece after piece of bone worked out of her leg. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured her." It is the most wonderful healing salve in the world. Beware of counterfeits. Sold by M. S. Crain.

Badly Out of Shape.

Eight-year-old Robert is very fond of using high sounding phrases, which he gleans from the conversation of grownups and stores in his mind until a suitable occasion arrives when he may spring them upon an admiring audience.

At breakfast he had heard his father read an extract from the morning paper, the phraseology of which had impressed itself upon his memory, as was evidenced by the announcement he made on his return from school.

"Mother," he said, "a poor pussy cat was run over by the Amsterdam avenue cars, and what do you think? It was crushed out of all likeness to humanity."—New York Press.

Full of Tragic Meaning

are these lines from J. H. Simmons, of Casey, Ia. ## An Indisputable SAFE INVESTMENT

The material progress which our country is now, and has been making for the past decade of years, naturally brings to the surface numerous schemes of the "get-rich-quick" character that benefit only the promoters of such, at the expense of innocent investors.

In this age of genuine prosperity with every legitimate business booming, wages high, work in abundance, giving employment to all willing to earn, and products of the farm bringing best prices; there is little or no excuse for one not to join the army of money-makers.

The first and safest investment to make is to become a reader of the CINCINNATI ENQUIRER, the greatest and most reliable newspaper in the United States. With the facts, truth and information gleaned from its columns, one may become well qualified to reach out and secure his share of profit that always accrues from investments intelligently made.

The WEEKLY ENQUIRER costs but one dollar for one year's term. The SUNDAY ENQUIRER costs you two dollars for a year. The DAILY ENQUIRER (7 issues a week) you get for fourteen dollars a year.

Without the aid of a first-class newspaper, success in any enterprise becomes problematical. For ten cents you can secure a sample copy of each, DAILY, SUNDAY and WEEKLY ENQUIRER. Address, Enquirer Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness is a sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to be awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Restlessness, Irritability, Mischievous, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made, with all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all efforts failed, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."

MRS. A. G. HARKIN, Greenville, N. Y.

witness to the tragedy says that Wright and Bill Firestein were wrestling and that Wright was thrown to the floor, and that while he was getting up Joe Firestein stepped from behind the counter and fired. Others say that Wright had been very boisterous in the store prior to the shooting. The defense claims that Wright was interfering with the clerks, and became angry when requested to leave and then then threw Bill Firestein to the floor. Joe Firestein's bail was fixed at $5,000, purchased a mule of Allen Riley.

R. M. Begley and E. E. Sandlin returned Thursday from Athol, where they had been to buy a boat load of corn. They paid 65 cents a bushel.

Our merchant, Mr. Morris, received a new supply of groceries
etc. Saturday, and is selling them at the right prices. Give him a call, see his goods and get his prices.

One of the earliest of spring weddings occurred at Shoal Thursday. The groom was John Lucas and the bride was Miss Pollie
Bowling, daughter of Woolery Bowling.

Some few days since James Gay (Muggie) stepped into Jerry Morris' store with his temperature above Fahrenheit, closed the back door as if he had heart trouble, discharged a quantity of tobacco juice on the only clean place on the floor, ran in the proprietor's face and whispered, "softly, 'Any safety pins, please, it's a 12-pound girl, and I don't care who knows it.' After which he quietly left.

BOONEVILLE.

W. S. Abshear, of South Booneville, is critically ill with hemorrhage of the lungs.

Farmers are well along this spring with their farming. Some considerable corn has been planted but Sunday looked more like gathering corn than planting corn.

Rose Bros. are loading several rafts of lumber "ready sawed", which they will land at the mouth of Dix river, for the purpose of building some new tobacco barns on their farms recently purchased in Garrard county.

The Owsley county fiscal court met last week and finished up the business for the last fiscal year.
Claims of all kinds allowed during the year, $3,680; pole tax levied, $1. per head and 40 cents advalorum per $100 worth of taxable property.

After some of the most beautiful spring weather we ever had, Sunday we experienced some of the most rigid March weather we ever saw. The wind blew from the north at the rate of 40 miles an hour and the worst snow storm of the season raged with the snow
two inches deep.

Bruce Woodward, who sold out his entire business in Booneville some time ago with a view of changing his place of business, has concluded that there is no place like old Owsley county, and has purchased the business house heretofore owned by H. C. Needham and will open up this spring again with a full line of merchandise. Bruce knows a good thing when he sees it.

The Brewer family of this county are numerous, and worse for family names than the Smiths and Nobles, of Breathitt county. So in a business transaction an order for goods among the Brewers run thus: "Mr. John Brewer (Stingy) please send one dollar's worth of coffee to John Brewer (Ring Neck) by John Brewer (Black Snake) and charge same to John Brewer (Bug-ger)." The coffee came O. K.

A telephone company is now about ready to commence work on a line beginning at Burning Springs in Clay county, via Sturgeon P. O.
to Booneville and on to Beattyville.
The incorporators of which are:
Hon. H. C. Faulkner, of Barbour-ville; W. W. Rawlins and Sam
Kash, of Manchester, and T. C.
Fuller and G. W. Garrett, of Booneville. They say they will have the "hello" business ready by June 30th next, which will add greatly to our community.

THE HARGIS TRIAL

The jury in the James Hargis case was completed last Saturday evening at Lexington after more than 200 men had been examined. The jury is composed of the following named citizens:

J. H. Tucker, farmer.
John W. Lancaster, merchant.
John Seully, farmer.
Fred Roser, farmer.
Roger Gannon, farmer.
George D. Karsner, farmer.
C. J. Graves, Jr., farmer.
David McChord, farmer.
Samuel Buchanan, farmer.
James Friley, ice salesman.
C. W. Hardeman, farmer.
S. C. Robinson, farmer.

Col. C. J. Bronston made the opening statement for the prosecution, while Judge J. R. Morton did a like duty for the defendant. Court adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday morning, when Charles Robbins was put on the stand, who testified that he saw Curt Jett, Bill Britton and another man fire shots, that Britton and the unknown man had guns in their hands while Jett had a pistol.

The following brief summary of the evidence was taken from the Courier-Journal reports in the case:

Dr. A. H. Barclay, of Lexington, was the next witness, who testified as to the character of Cockrill's wounds.

Riley Coldiron was the next witness, who testified to almost the same facts as Robbins.

Miss Sue Williams was next called, who testified to seeing Jett and Britton cross from the court house to Hargis' store and back again to the court house.

Harrison Blanton, the next witness, testified to seeing two men in the court house window. He then went to the court house and saw Curt Jett and Jess Spicer standing in the hallway and Bill Britton coming down the steps.

Sebastian Williams, the next witness, said he has lived in Breathitt county all his life. He said he knew Jett, Britton and James Hargis. He was in Jackson the day Cockrill was shot, and was with his brother, Kash Williams, noon, and in the office of G. W. Fleenor, in the court house, when the shooting took place.

He was near the window of the office, which is on the ground floor of the court house. He heard the shots and thought they were boards falling somewhere. He looked out of the window and saw Cockrill running down the street. Coming out of the front door of the court house he saw several men in the hallway but could not say who they were. Saw Curt Jett on the steps near the door. Witness looked toward the Hargis building and saw Jim Hargis standing at a window on the second floor. It looked like Hargis had a gun in his hand. Witness then showed the position of the gun as held by Hargis. This was the first testimony of the day which in any way connected James Hargis with the killing or any of the incidents either before or after the shooting. Witness went down the street to where Cockrill had fallen.

Col. Allen then asked him if he heard Cockrill say anything, to which an objection was made, but before the court could rule on the question the witness answered and said he heard Cockrill say, "They killed me." The court sustained the objection and ordered this answer stricken from the record.

Williams said that he returned to the court house and saw Curt Jett and Elbert Hargis come out of the court house and cross to Sewell's barn with something under their coats. He was allowed to indicate how the men carried their coats, and also how they were arranged when they returned from the barn.

Williams' testimony was concluded on Tuesday morning, after which M. Forbes, Robert Blake, John E. Patrick, John Patrick, Silas McIntosh and A. S. Johnson were put on the stand in the order named and gave pretty much the same testimony as in the Jett-White trial at Cynthiana. Tom Cockrill was the next witness, who testified as to the attempted arrest of James Hargis on a warrant for breach of the peace committed in March's office during the taking of the depositions in the contest cases. Charles Terry was next introduced, who testified concerning the same facts.

Anderson, or "Anse" White, was the next witness. Said he knew James Hargis and the other men jointly indicted with him. Witness was in Jackson the day application was made for bail for Tom Cockrill, who was in jail charged with the murder of Ben Hargis. He was in the court house and met Jim Hargis, who asked him if he had a pistol. Witness said he went to the Hargis store with Jim Hargis and was there given a forty-five Colt's revolver by the defendant, after which they returned to the court house. After reaching the courthouse witness said that Hargis told him to go into the court room and join Curt Jett and Hiram Hays, and if any argument was started, to assist those two men in killing either or all five men. Witness said Hargis named Jim Cockrill, McKinley Cockrill, Attorney W. W. Vaughan, Dr. Cox and one other man, which he believed was Jim Marcum, all of which he wanted killed. Witness said he went into the court room and saw Hays, but at that time did not know Curt Jett. Said that during the argument on the question of bail Hiram Hays left his seat and went to the railing and began cursing Jim Cockrill and Attorney Vaughan, but was silenced by one of the deputy sheriffs. Witness said he took a seat behind the stove in order to save his own life in case any shooting was done. Said he did not take the pistol with any intention of using it, but that his brother, Tom White, was in trouble in Jackson at that time, and he believed that Jim Hargis was in a position to help him out of that trouble, and in order to win the influence of Hargis made him believe that he would assist in the slaughter.

On cross-examination by Farrell the witness said he asked Hargis for a holster in which to carry the gun, but not having one, Hargis told him to put the gun under his coat, which he did, with the muzzle protruding above his coat collar. Said that all the time he was in the court room the gun was in this position, but that as Hargis had told him it made no difference, he made no further effort to conceal it. Witness said he went to Hargis that afternoon to return the gun to him, but was told not to leave town, as he was needed. Spent two days at the home of Louis Hays and his expenses were paid by Hargis, after which he returned the pistol and went to his home in the country.

Hardin Childers, the next witness, had lived in Breathitt county for twelve years. Was about 150 yards from the court house when the shooting of Cockrill took place. Went to the court house and saw Elbert Hargis, Jett, Britton and Jesse Spicer. Witness said he got a message from Jim Hargis a few days after the shooting, but at this instance attorneys for the defense were on their feet objecting to the witness telling the nature of this message. But after Col. Allen had explained what he intended to prove by this witness the court ruled that it was competent. He said the note stated that he, Childers, had better walk straight and not cross the path of Hargis; that he had been in the way of Hargis for fifteen years; that Hargis was tired of being accused of murdering people, and that it was time for witness to get out of the county. Childers said he went to the store of Hargis and asked him if he had said and meant what was in the message, and Hargis said, "Yes, by God, I said it." Childers told Hargis that he must be mistaken about reports alleged to have been made by him, and Hargis told him that perhaps he was, and if so he was sorry. Witness said Hargis told him he did not like Cockrill and was a friend of the man who had shot him.

On Wednesday morning W. W. Vaughan went on the stand and among other things corroborated Anse White as well as Charles Terry about the maneuvers in the court room during the hearing of the application of Tom Cockrill for bail. Charles Green and James Blanton testified to the same facts as in former trials.

The next witness, Daniel Bush, was formerly deputy town marshal of Jackson. Said that about ten days before the killing of Cockrill he met Jim Hargis on the bridge at Jackson and that Hargis asked him to assist in a plot to "get rid" of Cockrill. Witness said he refused to have anything to do with the plot to kill Cockrill. Witness said Hargis held out the position of town marshal of Jackson if he would do the work.

Vaughan went on the stand and among other things corroborated Anse White as well as Charles Terry about the maneuvers in the court room during the hearing of the application of Tom Cockrill for bail. ## EBEN HOLDEN

By
IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright, 1900, by Lothrop Publishing Company

The dog growled a little for a moment and bit at the harness, but coaxed reassured him, and he went along all right again on the level. At a small settlement the children came out asking me questions. Some of them tried to pet the dog, but old Fred kept to his labor at the heels of Uncle Eben and looked neither to right nor left. We stopped under a tree by the side of a narrow brook for our dinner, and one incident of that dinner I think of always when I think of Uncle Eben. It shows the manner of man he was and with what understanding and sympathy he regarded every living thing. In rinsing his teapot he accidentally poured a bit of water on a big humble-bee. The poor creature struggled to lift himself, and then another down-pour caught him and still another until his wings fell drenched. Then his breast began heaving violently, his legs stiffened behind him, and he sank head downward in the grass. Uncle Eben saw the death throes of the bee and knelt down and lifted the dead body by one of its wings.

"See! look at his velvet coat," he said, "and his wings all wet and stiff. They'll never carry him another journey. It's too bad a man has to kill every step he takes."

The bee's tail was moving faintly, and Uncle Eben laid him out in the warm sunlight and fanned him awhile with his hat, trying to bring back the breath of life.

"Clarity!" he said presently, crouching back with a sober face. "That's a dead bee. No tellin' how many was dependent on him or what plans he had. Must 'a' g'n him a lot o' pleasure 't' dy round in the sunlight, workin' every fair day. 'S all over now."

He had a gloomy face for an hour after that, and many a time in the days that followed I heard him speak of the murdered bee.

We lay resting awhile after dinner and watching a big city of ants. Uncle Eben told me how they filled the soil of the mound every year and sowed their own kind of grain—a small white seed like rice—and reaped their harvest in the late summer, storing the crop in their old the story of the ant lion—a big beetle that lives in the jungles of the grain and the grass—of which I remember only an outline, more or less imperfect.

Here it is in my own rewording of his tale: On a bright day one of the little black folks went off on a long road in a great field of barley. He was going to another city of his own people to bring help for the harvest. He came shortly to a sandy place where the barley was thin and the hot sunlight lay near to the ground. In a little valley deep by the road of the ants he saw a deep pit in the sand with steep sides sloping to a point in the middle and as big ground as a biscuit. Now, the ants are a curious people and go looking for things that are new and wonderful, as they walk abroad, so they have much to tell worth hearing after a journey.

The little traveler was young and had no fear, so he left the road and went down to the pit and peeped over the side of it.

"What in the world is the meaning of this queer place?" he asked himself as he ran around the rim. In a moment he had stepped over, and the soft sand began to cave and slide beneath him. Quick as a flash the big lion beetle rose up in the center of the pit and began to reach for him. Then his legs flew in the evening sand, and the young ant struck his blades in it to hold the little he could gain.

Upward he struggled, leaping and floundering in the dust. He had got near the rim and had stopped, clinging to get his breath, when the lion began flinging the sand at him with his long feelers. It rose in a cloud and fell on the back of the ant and pulled at him as it swept down. He could feel the mighty cleavers of the lion striking near his hind legs and pulling the sand from under them. He must go down in a moment, and he knew what that meant. He had heard the old men of the tribe tell often how they hold one

We were going like mad, helpless and slash him into a dozen pieces. He was letting go in despair when he felt a hand on his neck. Looking up, he saw one of his own people reaching over the rim, and in a jiffy they had shut their fangs together. He moved little by little as the other tugged at him and in a moment was out of the trap and could feel the honest earth under him. When they had got home and told their adventure some were for going to slay the beetle.

"There is never a pit in the path o' duty," said the wise old chief of the little black folks. "See that you keep in the straight road."

"If our brother had not left the straight road," said one who stood near, "he that was in danger would have gone down into the pit."

"It matters much," he answered, "whether it was kindness or curiosity that led him out of the road. But he that follows a fool hath much need of wisdom, for if he save the fool day by day, he will not save him at all. Of course I had then no proper understanding of the chief's counsel, nor do I pretend even to remember it from that first telling, but the tale was told frequently in the course of my long acquaintance with Uncle Eben.

The diary of my good old friend lies before me as I write, the leaves turned yellow and the entries dim. I remember how stern he grew of an evening when he took out this sacred little record of our wanderings and began to write in it with the state of a pencil. He wrote slowly and read and reread each entry with great care as I held the torch for him. "Be still, boy; be still," he would say when some pressing interrogatory passed my lips, and then he would bend to his work while the point of his pencil bored farther into my impatience. Beginning here, I shall quote a few entries from the diary, as they cover with sufficient detail an uneventful period of our journey:

"August the 20th. Killed a partridge today. Bled it in the teapot for dinner. Went good. 14 mild.

"August the 21st. Seen a deer this morning. Fred fit 'g'n. Come near spiltin' the wagon. Hed to stop an' fix the ex. 10 mild.

"August the 22nd. Climb a tree this morning after wild grapes. Come near falling. G'n me a little creek in the back. Willie hes got a stun bruze. 12 mild.

"August the 23d. Went in swimmin'. Ketched a few fish before breakfast. Got provisions an' two case knives an' one fork; also one tin pie plate. Used same to fry fish for dinner. 14 mild.

"August the 24th. Got some spirits for Willie to rub on my back. Boots wearing out. Terrible hot. Lay in the shade in the heat of the day. Gypsies come an' camped by us tonight. 10 mild."

I remember well the coming of those gypsies. We were fishing in sight of the road, and our fire was crackling on the smooth crooked shore. The big wagons of the gypsies—there were four of them, as red and beautiful as those of a circus caravan—halted about sundown while the men came over a mound to scan the field. Presently they went back and turned their wagons into the siding and began to unhitch. Then a lot of barefooted children and women under gay shawls overran the field gathering wood and making ready for night. Meanwhile swarthy drivers took the horses to water and tethered them with long ropes so they could crop the grass of the roadside.

One tall, bony man, with a face almost as black as that of an Indian, brought a big iron pot and set it up near the water. A big stew of beef, bone, leeks and potatoes began to cook, shortly, and I remember it had such a goodly smell I was minded to ask them for a taste of it. A little city of strange people had surrounded us of a sudden. Uncle Eben thought of going on, but the night was coming fast, and there would be no moon, and we were footsore and hungry. Women and children came over to our fire after supper and made more of me than I liked.

I remember taking refuge between the knees of Uncle Eben and Fred sat close in front of us, growling fiercely when they came too near. They stood about, looking down at us, and whispered together, and one young miss of the tribe came up and tried to kiss me in spite of Fred's warnings. She had flashing black eyes and hair as dark as the night that fell in a curling mass upon her shoulders; but, somehow, I had a mighty fear of her and fought with desperation to keep my face from the touch of her red lips.

the lightning. I lay between Uncle Eben and the old dog, who both went to sleep shortly. Less worried, I presume, than either of them, for I had done none of the carrying and had slept a long time that day in the shade of a tree, I was awake an hour or more after they were snoring. Every flash lit the old room like the full glare of the noonday sun. I remember it showed me an old cradle piled full of rubbish, a rusty stool hung in the rotting ash of a window, a few lengths of stovepipe and a plow in one corner and three staring white owls that sat on a beam above the doorway. The rain roared on the old roof shortly and came whipping down through the bare boards above us. A big drop struck in my face, and I moved a little. Then I saw what made me move. It was a moment and cover my head with the shovel. A flash of lightning revealed a tall, ragged man looking in at the doorway. I lay close to Uncle Eben, imagining much evil of that vision, but made no outcry.

Uncle Eben laughed and held Fred by the collar, and I began to cry out in terror presently, when, to my great relief, she let go and ran away to her own people. They all went away to their wagons, save one young man, who was tall with light hair and a fair de skin, and who looked like none of the other gypsies.

"Take care of yourself," he whispered as soon as the rest had gone. "These are bad people. You'd better be off."

The young man left us, and Uncle Eben began to pack up at once. They were going to bed in their wagons when we came away. I stood in the basket, and Fred drove the wagon that had in it only a few bundles. A mile or more farther on we came to a lonely, deserted cabin close to the road. It had begun to thunder in the distance, and the wind was blowing damp.

"Guess nobody lives here," said Uncle Eben as he turned in at the lagging gate and began to cross the little patch of weeds and hollyhocks behind it. "Door's half open, but I guess I'd better 'n no house. G'n't 't rain startin'."

I was nodding a little about then, I remember, but I was wide awake when he took me out of the basket. The old house stood on a high hill, and we could see the stars of heaven through the ruined door and one of the back windows. Uncle Eben lifted the leaning door a little and shoved it aside. We heard then a quick stir in the old house—a loud and ghostly rustle it seems now as I think of it—like that made by linen shaking on the line. Uncle Eben took a step backward as if it had startled him.

"Guess it's nothin' to be 'fraid of," he said, feeling in the pocket of his coat. He had struck a match in a moment. By its flickering light I could see only a bit of rubbish on the floor.

"Full o' white owls," said he, stepping inside, where the rustling was now continuous. "They'll do us no harm."

I could see them now flying about under the low ceiling. Uncle Eben gathered an armful of grass and clover in the rear field and spread it in a corner well away from the ruined door and windows. Covered with our blanket, it made a fairly comfortable bed. Soon as we had laid down the rain began to rattles on the shabby roof and flashes of lightning lit every corner of the old room.

I have had ever a curious love of storms, and from the time when memory began its record in my brain it has delighted me to hear at night the roar of thunder and see the swift play of Thomas Morris of Custer county, Neb., is still a vigorous, hale old fellow, although he is 111 years old. Morris was born at Werne, Shropshire, England, learned the butcher's and later the cobbler's trade, and when he was eighty-two he came to America with the family, with whom he now lives. Since then he has been growing up with the country. He attributes his longevity chiefly to his dietary and in particular to his avoiding hot bread and pastry. He also has always drunk beer and thinks it has benefited him. While he has always smoked and chewed tobacco, he is not so emphatic in its favor, but says it has never hurt him and that its use gave him comfort. His teeth are still sound, and he has never had to call the dentist to his aid.
